The term engine tune up is a little outdated as cars today don't actually have things we can adjust and tune although we still use it to identify when wear parts should be replaced. Modern vehicles still have spark plugs, filters and crankcase ventilation valves that need routine replacement. We keep an eye on condition, age and mileage and will advise when this service is needed. The goal as with most maintenance we perform is to prevent expensive future issues and keep your vehicle reliable for as long as you own it.
